

Venus & Vitalis

Fantasy rom-com screenplay
by Michael Karp

Venus & Vitalis

In this unique rom-com the goddess Venus breaks off her two-thousand-year romance with Helen of Troy, to become an intimacy counselor in Hollyweird, getting romantically involved with a Chippendales dancer moonlighting as a Cal Tech calculus professor. Ultimately Venus saves the universe through her mission from God to bring true love, great sex, water skiing cats and eternal life to all of humanity.

Our hero is Vitalis, a Hollywood cinematographer who has been dating the most beautiful actresses in Hollywood.

But he has two problems: His sexy girlfriends inexplicitly keep dumping him. And he is grieving, because his beloved cat Bastet died forty years ago.

Vitalis seeks help from Venus, the most famous intimacy counselor in all of Hollywood. Vitalis is the only human that knows that Venus is immortal.

What Vitalis doesn't know is that his latest movie super star girlfriend is actually the nymphomaniac Helen of Troy, who had been dating Venus for two thousand years, until Venus dumped her to go straight. And so there is bad blood between the women.

Venus seduces her patient Vitalis, proclaiming that she is his true love.

That night they attend the Academy awards, where Vitalis is a nominee for best cinematography.

They encounter Helen of Troy on the red carpet, accompanied by a Chippendales dancer who is moonlighting as a Cal Tech calculus professor and Tantric sex instructor.

After Vitalis wins his Oscar (which has been converted into a vibrating sex toy by the lab geeks at Cal Tech), Helen of Troy kidnaps everyone to be her sex slaves in the Masonic temple across the street from the Dolby Theater.

Vitalis's character is tested by nude bungee jumping, bait and switch blow jobs from Helen of Troy, Navy SEAL invasions and the reincarnation of his cat Bastet. And Venus must transcend her promiscuous, bad girl past.

The screenplay is an outrageous sex comedy, like The Heartbreak Kid, Forgetting Sarah Marshall and Californication.

Theme: You need to kiss lots of frogs before you meet your princess.

Screenplay by Michael Karp

michaelkarpvfx@gmail.com

<http://michaelkarp.net> • +1 (514) 562-8147

IMDB

Teaser reel